5 Competing Fairly

In a free market system, competition drives efficiency and innovation, and companies compete on a level playing field. Violations of laws that protect competition can lead to penalties that include large fines, jail time, damaged reputation and exclusion from government contracts. Fair competition is in everyone's best interest. We are committed to complying with competition/antitrust laws wherever we operate.

All the employees should:

5.1 Please refer to this Code when interacting with competitors at all time.

5.2 Seek guidance from Legal and Compliance Department, whenever a competition/antitrust law question arises.

5.3 Compete vigorously using public information and competitive circumstances to your best advantage.

5.4 Remember that compliance is always in the Company's best interest. No one is ever authorized to violate the law.

5.5 Do not discuss with a competitor any terms on which you compete, prices, or allocations of jobs, customers, or markets.

The Company and all employees are not allowed to use property or other means to bribe and sell goods. Those who secretly give kickbacks to the other party's company or individual outside of the account shall be punished as bribery. When selling services and goods, if discounts are required to be given to the other party, including but not limited to commissions,tt2r96(oth)13(e)-3(r)TBTIEMCee4(nt based on the prices, services, quality, and reputation provided by the suppliers, and in accordance with the principle of being beneficial to the long-term business development of the company. When dealing with suppliers, employees should always maintain fairness and should not attempt to exert influence to obtain "special treatment" for a specific supplier, as this can jeopardize our competitive selection process. Employees cannot accept or demand personal benefits from suppliers and target suppliers to prevent damaging the fairness of supplier product and price evaluation. Employees should also keep confidential the pricing or product information submitted by suppliers or potential suppliers to the Company. The procurement agreement should be appropriately approved and clearly define the services and products provided, the calculation basis for payment, and the applicable prices and fees. The payment amount must match the service or product provided.

7.2 Items, discount, and gifts

For items, discount and gifts provided by suppliers during the procurement negotiation process, they should be reflected in the procurement contract in principle. For situations where there is no contract or cannot be reflected in the contract, the gift should also be considered as an asset of the Company, rather than a personal gift for employees participating in negotiations.

7.3 Interactions with potential customers and clients

The Company is committed to meeting all customer needs, ensuring customer satisfaction, and maintaining long-term partnerships with customers. Employees shall not intentionally make false statements to customers regarding the products or services of the Company or competitors. All comparisons with competitors must be accurate, based on publicly available information and not misleading. Employees are not allowed to sign sub agreements or private agreements with clients outside of written contracts. Employees shall not directly or indirectly provide money or any other form of bribery to government officials in order to obtain or retain customers.

8 Donations

Donations, patronage, and sponsorship may be used to conceal an undue advantage. They may constitute, or be seen to constitute, acts of direct or indirect corruption regardless of their monetary value. This risk is greater when public officials have a direct or indirect connection to the event or activity benefitting from the donation, patronage, or sponsorship. All contributions, whether they are made in the context of patronage, donations, or sponsorship, must go through an approval process which becomes more rigorous as the value of the contribution increases. Close attention must be paid to what the financing or donations are used for, especially when the potential beneficiary of patronage, donation, or sponsorship is or has ties to a public official, public authority, a Politically Exposed Person (PEP), or has ties to one of our customers.

9 Requirements for suppliers

The Company implements a "fair, open, and just" sunshine procurement model, by increasing the proportion of open bidding, expanding the scope of price seeking, and continuously improving procurement transparency. All departments and affiliated companies of the Company should send integrity notification letters or sign integrity commitment letters and integrity contracts to relevant parties when signing contracts with suppliers, including clauses prohibiting cooperation from providing various benefits and conveniences to the Company staff, their relatives, and specific related parties. At the same time, as a one vote veto system, clean and honest employment will prevent suppliers from participating in bidding and will be blacklisted in case of any violations.
